Sun Breaks Belgium's Poison Fog; 64 Dead

PROSECUTOR

N. B. Krilenko, (above) served as public prosecutor in the trial of eight Soviet engineers charged with plotting the overthrow of the Moscow government.

DAY FREED IN HUNTING CASE

Marion Man Found Not Guilty of "Taking Hen Pheasant."

DENIES BIRD WAS HIS

Cincinnati Doctor To Face Similar Charge in Municipal Court.

Gordon B. Day, 57, of 246 Summit street was discharged from municipal court yesterday afternoon after Acting Judge Hector S. Young had found him not guilty of taking a hen pheasant.

Considerable argument on what constitutes "taking" made the hearing lengthy. The fact that the hen pheasant Day is charged with taking was dead when removed from an automobile parked in front of Hotel Harding a week ago last night led defense counsel to argue that Day was not guilty of "taking" the bird according to the legislature's definition of "taking."

Find Bird in Sack

Dr. F. J. Boyd of Cincinnati, whom Day accompanied on a hunting trip a week ago Saturday and the owner of the automobile from which the pheasants were taken, will face a charge similar to the one brought against Day when he appears in municipal court Tuesday for a hearing. Boyd claimed a duffle bag from which Frank D. Voorhees, investigator in the state department of conservation, removed a second hen pheasant. When Voorhees searched the car, Day claimed a gunny sack in which the first bird was contained.

Day testified that at least two hen pheasants were shot by the party of hunters during the day, but said he did not kill any but cock birds. He also said he warned the other hunters against taking hen birds.

Others in Party

He also declared that he claimed the automobile, and both hen pheasants to enable his Cincinnati friends to return home that night.

Several other hunters besides those in Dr. Boyd's automobile were in the hunting party a week ago Friday when the hen birds were shot, Day said.

Immediately after the hearing, a $350 shotgun taken from Day by Voorhees at the time the birds were confiscated, was returned.

W. P. Moloney was counsel for Day. City Prosecutor John Wiedemann brought the action in behalf of the state.

MYSTERIOUS DEATH WAVE LIFTS SLOWLY

Secret of Strange Plague in Belgium Unsolved; Scientists Investigate.

PEOPLE IN PANIC OF FEAR

Theory of Buried War Munitions Being Cause Believed To Be Unfounded.

By The Associated Press

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Dec. 6— Slowly as it had come, the suffocating pall of poisoned fog which has chocked the life out of more than three score dwellers in the Meuse valley began to disappear this morning as the sun bored through the mist.

If it had gone, however, it had taken with it the secret of its mysterious menace. Doctors in dozen villages were too busy answering frantic calls to confer with the authorities seeking an answer to the riddle. They knew only that as the fog rolled in the victims coughed, choked and died.

No more deaths were reported today, and as reports came in from the stricken districts it began to appear as though this terror had passed. Government medical authorities were on the ground to begin their investigation, and they had all the cooperation they needed.

People Gripped by Fear

The simple folk who fled their village homes in panic, or remained inside behind locked doors, could not be reassured, however, and persisted in the conviction that this death fog had come in waves of poisoned gas whose origin they did not attempt to explain.

The fog which struck terror to the Meuse valley brought inconvenience to other sections of Belgium also. At Hoboken an Antwerp ferry went around a hundred yards from its pier and the passengers waded ashore through two feet of mud. At Appert a French army airplane made a forced landing and was wrecked, although its occupants were not injured. Near Courcelles a cyclist lost his way in

MARION COUNTY MAN IN JAIL AFTER RAID

Harvey E. Verity To Be Arraigned Today; Can of Liquor Seized.

Harvey E. Verity of the Marion-Marysville road was to be arraigned this afternoon in probate court on a charge of illegal possession of intoxicating liquor following his arrest Wednesday.

State prohibition officers who obtained the warrant for his arrest claim to have found a can containing three and one-half gallons of liquor on Verity's premises. He was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Fred Williams and has been in the county jail since his arrest.

The case of Joseph A. M. Sansotta, another whose arrest was caused a month ago by the state dry force, has not yet been decided by Probate Judge Oscar Gast. Sansotta's hearing was held Wednesday.

Lily Smith, colored, was freed by the court this week although she pleaded guilty to a charge of possession. The woman is caring for three grandchildren and has been warned by the court that they will be taken to the Children's Home if she is arrested again.

Two county jail prisoners who have been unable to pay fines assessed by the court when they pleaded guilty to liquor charges are to be taken to the Dayton workhouse to serve out their fines, Judge Gast said today. They are Clarence Tannehill of Nelsonville, fined $100 and costs, and William Northrup of Prospect, fined $1,000 and costs. All were arrested by the state dry agents.

By International News Service

IRONTON, O., Dec. 6—A damage suit, asking $30,000 damages for the death of James B. Dean, 12-year-old school boy, who was killed Nov. 1 when a tree stump was blown through the roof of the Kelly school, was filed here today by William Dean, father of the dead boy, against the Ray Strawser construction company of East Columbus. Dean claimed in his petition that his son was killed when workmen for the construction company set off a charge of dynamite under a stump, hurling it into the air and through the roof of the school building. The teacher and five other pupils were injured.

ALL MARION TO PLAY HOST TO GRANGERS

Chamber of Commerce Urges Residents To Extend Hospitality to Visitors.

Marionites today were urged to extend every possible courtesy and their hospitality to delegates and visitors to the Ohio State Grange convention, which opens a four-day program here Monday.

"We want Marion to make these visitors feel they are welcome," Miss Mary Kelly, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce and spokeswoman for the committee said this morning. "We would like to see these persons invited into Marion homes and given a hospitable visit," she said.

C. of C. Active

The Chamber of Commerce has taken an active interest in the welfare of the Grange convention. It has taken charge of a public reception in The Star auditorium and has provided an attractive program for this session, to which all Marion is invited.

The reception program includes a brief talk by L. J. Taber, national grange master, of Columbus. Mayor L. Don Jones will extend welcome to the grangers, and Fred E. Guthery will make a short address for the Chamber of Commerce. The civic orchestra and the Canto club will furnish several selections.

The Chamber also urged businessmen and all Marionites to keep the uptown section free of parked automobiles during the convention to facilitate the handling of automobiles by the Grange visitors.

Additional parking space for business men has been provided at the rear of the Central Junior high school and in the lot in the rear of the R. T. Lewis offices on West Center street. Business men have been urged to use these lots and leave the streets free for the use of the conventioners.

Open Section

The section the Chamber of Commerce would like to hold open for automobiles of visitors is between Orchard and High streets on Center street and between Church and Mill streets on Main, Prospect and State streets.

A number of contests promised to provide unusually interesting sessions of the convention. Election of officers, and the selection of a 1931 convention city are among these.

Springfield and Sandusky today loomed as the two principal contestants for the 1931 convention. Columbus will also bid. The selection will be made Wednesday afternoon.

TWO WALDO YOUTHS BOUND OVER HERE

Forgery Charges Are Placed Against Thomas Brundage, Dale Kile.

Thomas Brundage and Dale Kile both of Waldo were bound over to the grand jury under $200 bond when they pleaded guilty in municipal court this morning to charges of forgery in connection with the drawing and passing a number of questionable checks to local merchants this week.

Both waived examination and pleaded not guilty when arraigned.

They were arrested by police late Thursday when Brundage attempted to pass a check for $23 at the Kleinmaier Bros. clothing store. Another check for $5.80 had previously been passed at the Cussins & Fearn Co., police say.

The last week has held a series of pitfalls for the youths. Last Saturday, O. H. Neimeyer, state game protector, arrested them on charges of violating fish and game laws. Both entered guilty pleas in a justice court at Prospect, and were fined $25 each.

Kile was fined $25 in municipal court yesterday when he pleaded guilty to a charge of operating an automobile with improper license plates.

Both are arranging bond to obtain their freedom on the check charges, according to police.

Man Appeals To Mayor For a "Wife of Means"

The mayor of any city often is obliged to hear hard luck stories and prescribe cure-alls for the blues as a part of his regular job. But Mayor L. Don Jones is thinking of drawing the line at marriage bureaus, following the receipt of a postal card from a man seeking a bride.

The card, sent from Las Cruces, New Mexico, read as follows:

"Mayor of Marion, O., Dear Sir—Unable to make a fair living with two trucks and a hamburger stand, I am seeking a life mate of some means and ability to aid me make a living. My age is 42, look 30, height 5 feet 7½ inches, weight 150, eyes brown, hair black, a lover of clean sport also a home trades painter and glazier, first glass.

"Also have honorable discharge but not very proud of same since I can't make a good living ever since I got it. Here is hoping your city may have some lonesome woman interested in me."

DRYS WIN EVERY POINT

Drouth Relief Measure, First Emergency Program, Up in Senate Monday.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6—Prohibition foes worked overtime yesterday at pummeling their enemy.

The house wet bloc failed in its first objective the elimination of appropriations for denaturing industrial alcohol with poisons, but they were encouraged by registering the highest vote in years on the effort.

They mustered 54 objectors to poison denaturants, against only half that figure when the same try was made last year. The majority against them, however, remained unchanged at 106. They made a second effort before the treasury bill which contained the item passed, but showed less strength, getting only 36 votes.

Numberless other minor attacks on appropriations dealing with prohibition went down to defeat by even greater margins.

After the session was over, however, prohibition was assailed out-

Life's Comedy

(Will Rogers Special)

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Dec. 6—You can't beat matrimony for unconscious humor. Today's highlights—some woman married her fifth naval officer. One more naval disarmament conference and she will have to start marrying a few civilians.

We will have to change the name of our navy from "Uncle Sam's navy" to "Mrs. Jones' husbands."

Then get this one—"Mrs. Sarah Bagley, clerk of Yuma county court, wire me immediately the name of the woman I married there last. O. R. Weed."

Don't want to brag but don't you wish you was here in the nice warm sunshine watching Knute's boys act out today?

BARTHOU TO FORM FRENCH MINISTRY

Radical-Socialist Accepts Call To Organize New Cabinet.

By The Associated Press

PARIS, Dec. 6—Louis Barthou today accepted an invitation from President Doumergue to form a ministry in succession to the defeated government of Andre Tardieu.

The Radical-Socialist former minister of justice, leaving the Elysee palace after half an hour's talk with the president, told newspapermen he had accepted the task in principle and that he would confer tonight with political leaders to that end.

The presidents of the chamber of deputies and the senate, Raymond Poincare, Aristide Briand and Andre Tardieu, he said, would be the first statesmen to "report progress" to the president tomorrow.

Poincare who has saved France in many other political crisis, declined to step into the breach opened by resignation of the Tardieu government.

The war-time president pleaded ill health.

"I told the president," said Poincare this morning, "that I do not yet feel strong enough to assume such a heavy task and that I feared I could not fulfill my duty as I would wish."

This was an allusion to an operation which the former premier underwent some months ago.

M. Barthou has been backed by the most influential elements of his party in the chamber as the man most likely to clear up the recent banking scandals and place the bourse once more upon a firm footing.

Rosa Ponselle Is Featured On Atwater Hour

BUILDING up the musical emotions of an audience by a series of program climaxes is the secret for concert and radio success disclosed by Rosa Ponselle, American prima donna of the Metropolitan Opera Company, who is to be the star of the Atwater Kent Radio Hour Sunday at 9:15 p. m.

Voice and musical sense are not the only things necessary for success in radio concert work, according to Miss Ponselle. Organization of the program so that it gradually tunes in on the emotional wave length of the audience is the first thing to consider, she believes. Once this is done, the singer may then display effectively the voice and the music sense it expresses in all its variety.

Born in Meriden, Conn. of Italian immigrant parents, Miss Ponselle pursued a musical career through church and motion picture theater to vaudeville and finally the Metropolitan Opera stage. This varied career gave her exceptional opportunities for the study of her audiences and for shaping her programs to meet their moods. With the coming of radio broadcasting she found program making a doubly fascinating experience.

STOCKS CLOSE WEEK LOWER

Losses from One to Five Points Common Over List.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Dec. 6—The stock market ended the week with a downward drift of prices.

Trading was in light volume, but rails were again conspicuously weak, several penetrating further into new low ground, and elsewhere in the list, losses of one to two points were common, although a few declines exceeded two points.

The market gained little comfort from reports from merchandising quarters indicating that retail trade was showing no more improvement than expected and reports that there had been some pressure selling in the last few sessions damped any cheer that might have been gained from the limited rally in the last hour yesterday.

Among rails, Erie sagged two points to 25¾, the lowest in six years. Only this week, however, the company has received permission from the interstate commerce commission to increase its depreciation charges, permitting it to take another step in its rehabilitation program started three years ago. [illegible] dropped three points to a new minimum, and Rock Island nearly two, although the latter recovered and closed firm. New York Central sagged a point to another new low.

In the main, final prices were [illegible] of the day, and the lowest of the week. The list opened about steady, but grew increasingly heavy throughout the two-hour session.

Week-end reports from the Youngstown steel area were encouraging. It appears that sheet steel orders placed by automobile manufacturers will bring a distinct upturn in the operations of some of the smaller independents next week, which will offset a decline in Republic's operations, leaving the aggregate at about 43 per cent of rated capacity.

An encouraging aspect of the week-end reports was the increase shown in the volume of bank clearings, presumably indicating that holiday requirements for funds are being felt in fair volume. In 22 leading cities, the decline from last year was less than 24 per cent, the smallest in several weeks. Recent weekly declines have averaged about 30 per cent.

REPORTS RAISE WHEAT PRICES

Sent Up by Weather News; Corn Price Trend Is Downward.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Dec. 6—Wheat tended upward and corn down at the opening today. Unfavorable harvest weather for wheat in Argentina and Australia was reported and Chicago corn receipts continued to expand. July delivery of wheat represented the 1931 crop was an exception, undergoing a decided drop.

Opening unchanged to half higher, wheat afterward scored some upturns but July fell about 2 cents from early top figures. Corn started at ¼@¾ off and showed but little power to rally.

Drizzling rains and mild temperatures over domestic winter wheat territory dispelled anxiety over crop prospects and led to speculative selling on the July delivery. This delivery appeared to be without buying support from the farm board allies, which, however, steadily upheld other active deliveries, all of which represent wheat available for immediate use. The upward trend of old crop deliveries was promoted by announcement that the grand champion carlot of fat cattle at the livestock show was wheat fed.

Downturns in corn accompanied word that arrivals here were 254 cars compared with only 67 a week ago. Corn traders continued to show disquiet over assertions that offerings of Argentine corn both to Pacific and Atlantic seaboard sections of the United States were on a practicable shipping basis. There were reports that corn was unlikely to rise again above wheat prices.

Oats declined with corn. Provisions reflected weakness of hog values.

MAN DIES HERE RIDING BIKE

Henry Franklin Eckard, 63, Falls from Wheel on North Main Street.

Henry Franklin Eckard, 63, fell dead from his bicycle yesterday at 4 p. m. on North Main street near the Pennsylvania railroad tracks County Coroner B. D. Osborn, who was called to determine the cause of his death, gave a verdict of heart disease, type unknown.

For a time it was thought that Mr. Eckard had been struck by a passing automobile, but a careful examination of the scene of the accident and of the body disclosed that a heart attack caused his death.

Worked at Quarry

Mr. Eckard, until the last three weeks a driller at the Evans Lime & Stone Co. was coming into Marion. Mrs. E. N. Longberry, to whose home he was taken, saw him pass the house on his bicycle. Her son saw a machine swerve to the right to avoid hitting something in the road. He ran to the spot and called for help. Mr. Eckard was carried into the Longberry home, but is believed to have been dead when assistance reached him.

He was taken to City hospital in the W. C. Boyd ambulance, but was pronounced dead when the ambulance arrived.

In the fall from the bicycle he suffered a broken neck, and a slight stone bruise on the side of his face. The handlebars of the bicycle were slightly bent out of line.

Mr. Eckard's home is in Belaire Gardens, R. F. D. No. 4, off of the Upper Sandusky pike. He was the father of C. E. Eckard of Jefferson street, John Eckard of Bryan street, Mrs. George Long of Richwood and Mrs. J. H. Long of Essex.

Born in Kentucky

He was born Nov. 13, 1867 in Kentucky to Andrew and Mildred Curtis Eckard, both dead. On March 21, 1896 he was married to Jennie McKnight, who survives him.

Besides his widow and children he leaves two brothers, John Eckard of Amesville, O., and George Eckard of Corning, O.

Funeral services will be held Monday at 1:30 p. m. at the home of his son at 445 Jefferson street and at 2 p. m. at Second Pilgrim Holiness church. Rev. W. C. Bowman, pastor, will be in charge. Interment will be made in Brush Ridge cemetery. The body may be viewed at the Jefferson street home of his son after late Sunday afternoon.

THEATER NEWS AND REVIEWS

"THE BAT WHISPERS" SHOULD PLEASE ALL WHO LIKE "SPOOKS"

Show at Palace Keeps Audience Sitting on Edge of Seats.

WEIRD lighting effects, splendid photography and above all a superb cast combine to make "The Bat Whispers," the current production at the Palace, a picture of excellent entertainment and for those who like their spooks "spooky" it is the last word. It is being shown again today.

The story needs no review for those who saw "The Bat" for it is taken from one of the "best sellers" of the stage by Mary Roberts Rinehart and Avery Hopwood. The screen production is much more elaborate than the stage version.

Chester Morris as Detective Anderson is supported by Maude Eburne as Lizzie Allen, the maid who furnishes no small amount of the comedy, Grayce Hampton, Una Merkel, William Bakewell, Hugh Huntley, Charles Dow Clark, Ben Bard and several others.

The Bat is seen everywhere and is found nowhere. A search for money stolen from the Oakdale bank brings the scene to the home of Courtleigh Fleming which has been let to Mrs. Van Gorder and after a series of thrills it is here the story ends.

A riotous comedy of the war featuring Slim Summerall furnishes another side of life on the battlefield. E. S. D.

PETER B. KYNE STORY DRAMATIZED AT OHIO

Three western bad men find themselves to be godfathers of a new-born baby in the midst of a desert after they have fled from a daring holdup of a mining town bank.

This, in brief, is the plot of "Hell's Heroes," Universal's drama based on Peter B. Kyne's "Three Godfathers," which opened last night at the Ohio Theater and which will be shown for the final times tonight.

Charles Bickford, Raymond Hatton and Fred Kohler contribute the main characterizations in the play and the work of each is notable.

In addition to the feature the program includes the personal appearance of Boyden Carpenter, "The Hill-Billy Kid," who plays and sings ballads of the mountains. Hearst's metrotone news, two Vitaphone Varieties and songs complete the bill. G. W.

VICTOR M'LAGLEN STARS AT MARION

Victor McLaglen is his old laugh-producing self in "A Devil With Women" at the Marion for the last times tonight.

In this show, he is a soldier of fortune seeking excitement in South American revolutions. His principal ambitions appear to be strutting at the head of an army and making a hit with the women.

So far as the strutting goes, we'll say that Victor is a wow, but with the women, he just isn't in step. Although he has a great many women admiring him and his uniform, he doesn't register so well with Mona Rica, who appears in the play as the lovely Rosita.

But Humphrey Bogart, nephew of a rich South American mine owner, also falls for Rosita and his love is returned. It's a complicated situation, but Victor solves it in his own way.

McLaglen has a peculiarly efficient way of rendering South American hombres unconscious by rapping them on the jaw.

The concluding episode of a serial, two comedies and news reels complete the Marion bill. R. W. B.

BIGGER AND BETTER

THE GREAT AMERICAN VALUE

Fine-car distinction and quality in the new Chevrolet Six

Again, Chevrolet and General Motors have utilized their combined resources to establish a new and higher standard of value for the American motor car.

Front view of the new Chevrolet Sport Coupe

The new Chevrolet represents a type of economical transportation that America has long anticipated—a low-priced six styled with such striking talent and good taste, so smartly beautiful and complete in its perfection of detail, so advanced and refined mechanically that you will immediately recognize it as the Great American Value.

This great value is the outcome of four basic Chevrolet advantages: (1) The savings of volume production in nineteen immense, modern plants. (2) The economies which result from great purchasing power. (3) The benefits of continuous research in General Motors laboratories and on the General Motors Proving Ground. And (4) the close association with the Fisher Body Corporation who, this year, have surpassed all their previous achievements in developing bodies of outstanding quality, refinement and value.

These basic advantages have made it possible to build a finer car at lower cost. They have enabled Chevrolet to offer a car with a longer wheelbase—greater roominess and comfort—strikingly smarter style—impressive new luxury—more thoroughly satisfactory performance—greater dependability. And to pass on these savings of efficient manufacturing to the buyer in the form of lower prices!

IMPERSONATOR WINS A HEARTY APPLAUSE

Jessie Rae Taylor Entertains Local Audience on School Program.

A close study of human nature enabled Jessie Rae Taylor to present a humorous as well as understanding program last night at Central Junior High school when she appeared here on the senior entertainment course.

From one character to another, with swift change of costume and equally swift change of voice, she entertained her audience for over an hour.

Her voice, naturally low pitched, was the most remarkable feature of her program. From a Bowery "tough" to an old man, then an aged Negro servant and a little girl with golden curls. Her voice was hard and raspy when she gave the tough's ideas on girls, and changed to fit each character which followed in a long and varied program. The philosophy of the old man on the girls of today, that they are no worse than the girls of yesteryears, for all their dresses and rouge and powder, won a hearty round of applause. In singing, her voice was a rich, deep contralto.

Miss Taylor, who is reputed the only woman member of the Wig and Grease Paint club of America, is winning her laurels through hard work while she is on the stage. Each of her characterizations, which she hastens to add are not caricatures, is complete in detail from costume to voice, and the split-seconds in which she changes her entire make-up is nothing short of breath-taking.

She opened the program with a humorous story, and closed with a short speech of thanks, dressed in an evening gown.

The capacity audience showed its appreciation with hearty applause after each sketch.

The King Male quartet will appear next on the program Tuesday night, Jan. 13.

Flattery is harmless to the woman who doesn't flatter herself.

The council of Mattoon, Illinois, has decided to permit the showing of Sunday movies on condition that each show is opened with prayer. Looks a lot like prostituting prayer.

Captain Frank Hawks told a gathering down in Memphis, Tennessee, that his new motor device reduced the consumption of gasoline forty per cent. What are we ever going to do to maintain our highway systms when the use of his device becomes general?

The final census report shows that Ohio's population on April 1 of the present year was 6,646,697, an increase of 887,303 or 15.4 per cent. In ten years. Some growth since 1800, when the first census taken in the state placed our population at 45,365. Those who are here 130 years hence are liable to find themselves crowded.

A Mansfield man has sued Governor Cooper and other state officials in the federal court in Cleveland for $10,000,000 as the result of the action of the Mansfield municipal court "frustrating justice" in a suit brought by him last August. Can it be that he doesn't realize that the governor has had enough political troubles as it is?

Sir Thomas Lipton repeatly withstood defeat without showing emotion, but when presented the golden loving cup as a memento of America's esteem for "the gamest loser in the world of sport" he was almost overcome. It's the old, old story. Often we withstand loss and sorrow, only to be overcome by emotion over tributes of love and affection intended to give us joy.

The soviet state prosecutor who is directing the case against the eight Russians being tried for conspiracy openly charged that it was due to them and those associated with them that the Russian five-year industrial plan has thus far been a failure. We thought that it would be developed sooner or later ,that the trial would turn out to be an alibi for Russian official failure.

When the plane in which Captain E. C. T. Edwards and Miss Winifred Spooner were attempting to fly from Croydon, England, to Cape Town, South Africa, was forced down by a heavy storm off Catina, Italy, the young aviatrix slipped off her flying togs and swam two miles to the shore and secured the assistance of fishermen to rescue the captain, who had remained with the machine. Did any one remark about the "weaker" sex?

A Splendid Response.

One visiting the Y. M. C. A. building is well repaid for the time taken in so doing, for the visit proves revealing. It reveals the splendid response the people of the city are making to the appeal for clothing and bedding to meet the needs of the city's unfortunate to protect from the cold of the coming winter. It reveals, as well, the immense aggregate of dresses, suits, shoes and other articles which will accumulate in the homes of a city of the size of ours, articles which have been laid away for one reason or another and never used. And this great accumulation is being augmented daily, not with old, wornout articles, but with articles of wearing apparel for both sexes and for all sizes, which are good and serviceable and will prove veritable blessings to those to whom they are being distributed.

Possibly the writer of this is more easily impressed than some, but we confess to amazement at the enthusiasm with which the people of the city have responded to the call for aid in this form. Citizens are bringing in garments ready to wear without the slightest reconditioning. Some citizens are saving the workers at the Y. M. C. A. labor by reconditioning garments before contributing them. Shoes are being received showing that they were given needed repairs, such as new soles and heels before being sent in. Such thoughtfulness shows a goodness of heart which speaks volumes for the citizenship.

We have made three trips to the commissary at the Y. M. C. A. building and come away more and more impressed, not alone with the response of the public in position to make contributions, but also with the efficient manner in which the workers are handling the contributions. In every respect, the project is proving a most successful one. Surely, in the face of such remarkable response and the splendid efforts of the workers in the commissary, there is no reason why any one in all the citizenship should not be comfortably clothed to meet the chills of the coming winter and spring.

Europe Is Worried.

It is next to impossible to escape the conclusion that Europe is really worried over the German-Polish situation. Advices from various European capitals as well as from Geneva make this evident. The protest made by Germany to the League of Nations over the violence and terrorism directed against the German minorities in Polish Silesia during the recent elections shows that the case charged against the Polish government is far stronger and more serious than was anticipated and that Germany will insist that the entire matter be taken up by the League council when it meets next month.

The German protest charges that the Polish authorities refused to honor nationality certificates, passports, military papers or other documents showing nationality and that names of thousands of Germans were struck off the election lists.

The memorandum then proceeds to give a long list of specific acts of terrorism waged against the Germans, describing how bands of the Silesian Insurgents' union, whose honorary president is administrative chief of Silesia, broke into houses, destroying furniture, beating the inmates and threatening them with death if they appeared at the polls.

The Reich memorandum relates that the Germans requested protection when the Insurgents' union published a proclamation announcing a reign of terrorism, but that the Warsaw government decided not to take any means to safeguard the minorities against the 4,000 insurgents.

Such being the nature of the German memorandum, Allied, and Little Entente circles as well as League, show anxiety over what may be the outcome if the council of the League is unable to induce Poland to give thought to the protection of the Germans in Upper Silesia in accordance with the pledge made by her and the stipulations of the Versailles treaty. Thus far, the attitude of Poland over the matter has been one of indifference, if not closely bordering on to the contemptuous. If Poland maintains a like attitude when the matter comes before the council, there is no telling what the outcome may be. If nothing more, it may cause insistence by Germany that the entire matter of her eastern frontiers be gone into, as her dissatisfaction over the strip of territory given to Poland and known as the "Danzig corridor," which cuts East Prussia off from the rest of Germany, has in no way lessened, but rather increased in volume from the date of the amputation up to the present.

The thing which is a mighty factor in arousing German resentment, no doubt, is the thought that her long-time enemy, France, may not be without responsibility for the Polish attitude. Germany knows, as all the world knows, that France not only is pledged to defend Poland and Polish integrity, but has also made large loans to Poland for the upbuilding of the Polish military machine. The interests of the two are allied. Any military action taken by Germany, assuming that Germany is in position to take such action, would force France to support Poland. Many wars have been caused on less grounds of offense than these charged by Germany. The World war was one of them.

Secretary of Agriculture Hyde declares in his report to the President that this year's drought was the worst in the history of the country. What a surprise that must have been to the agriculturists of the land!

Paris is sadly disappointed in President Hoover's annual message on the state of the union seeing in it a confession of inability on the part of the United States government to create prosperity. Paris evidently has been looking for the performance of a few miracles.

France Looks to Poincare.

Premier Andre Tardieu's second ministry has fallen, the French senate having expressed its lack of confidence by a vote of 147 to 139, and France is gaing looking to Raymond Poincaire, the "savior of the franc" and the man on whom that nation has so often called in the past in time of crisis, to form a new cabinet. Called by President Doumergue to form a new ministry, Poincare declined to step into the governmental breach, pleading lack of health, but his friends say that if some other strong and suitable man can not be obtained to fill the place, Poincare could be persuaded to reconsider and again become the premier of France.

The financial scandals of recent development, which had already resulted in the resignations of three members of the Tardieu cabinet, were largely responsible for the vote looking to a change in government, but there was, aside from this, dissatisfaction in the senate with the cabinet's policy at a time of uneasiness. It was held that the government was not in sympathy with the foreign policy of Aristide Briand and was responsible, as a result of its vague policies, for the present-day unrest throughout the republic. These were the major causes which caused the senate to take the unusual action it did, for it was but the fourth time in all the history of the third republic that the senate has forced the fall of a ministry, all but three of the many previous falls of ministries having been brought about by votes of lack of confidence by the chamber of deputies.

Should Poincare be prevailed upon to reconsider and accept the call, it will by just so much accentuate the long list of distinguished services he has performed for France. The ministerial portfolios held by him with decided distinction approximate a dozen or such a matter and he has so often served as prime minister, to say nothing of his long term as president of France, that for many years the history of France has been very much that of Poincare.

His health may prevent acceptance, but should he accept, he will come nearer holding the approval of the French in any ministry he may form than any man in the public eye of France.

The senate naval affairs committee has approved a bill carrying $60,000,000 to modernize the Idaho, New Mexico, and Mississippi, among the proposed changes being the remodeling of their turrets to enable them to fire twenty miles instead of twelve as at present, a bill which has all the earmarks of good sense. If we are to have battleships, they should not be obsolete vessels, but thoroughly up to date.

AN UNTIMELY PUNCTURE.

Editorial Opinion.

WRANGLING OVER APPORTIONMENT.

Congressmen from certain southern and western states that will lose seats by the reapportionment of the house of representatives under existing legislation have lost no time in starting an agitation for the enactment at this session of a new basis for apportionment. The law enacted last session was not in fact an apportionment act in the common sense of the term. What it did was to provide that, in the event of congress failing to redistribute the seats in the house at its first session after the census, a redistribution of the seats, worked out by the executive branch on the basis of the census showing, should automatically take effect. The size of the house was left by this law at 435 members.

Congress is still free to enact any other apportionment legislation before March 4, which can command the necessary number of votes to become law. There is little likelihood of its doing anything of the kind. The grounds upon which it is being demanded by different parties are too weak to commend themselves to the country generally.

One of these grounds is that alien residents should not be included in the numerical basis of representation, although the constitution specifically says they shall be. The Atlanta Constitution, whose state stands to lose two seats on the present basis of apportionment, admits frankly that "aliens are parts of such numbers and can not be excluded from the state quotas without a specific constitutional amendment creating such exclusions." Congress can not enact that amendment.

The other ground is that no state should be forced to suffer a diminution of the number of its seats in the house. There are plenty of precedents for reducing the number of seats a state has, when the interests of the country demand it. The state of New York, for example, attained to forty seats in 1830 and then dropped steadily through the next three censuses to thirty-one seats in 1860; and it was not until 1910 that it regained forty seats. Virginia lost two seats in 1870. The three northern New England states each lost a seat in 1880. The effect of reapportioning the house now, without reducing the representation of any state, would be to increase the size of the house by an additional 105 seats. The house is too large as it is. States that saved seats by making the house thus unwieldy would not gain any proportionate voting strength. All that would be gained would be just so many more jobs for "deserving" politicians. Congress contains enough of them now. The house should not be enlarged; and the states which have not grown fast enough to retain the seats given them in 1910 ought to take the consequences as gracefully as a few of them have. —Detroit Free Press.

"Bawling" Up Deer.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH.

Though the Indians of Ohio, as elsewhere, highly valued their "hunting grounds" as the basis of life, except in a few instances the idea of conserving game in them did not occur to the Indians. Because of this, conflict between them and the early settlers in Crawford county was almost precipitated.

The Indians had a method of getting deer in the season when the fawns were young, that enabled them to shoot them in great numbers. They learned how to imitate the distress cry of the fawn, and this method was known as "bawling the deer." At the sound of this cry, the does, and frequently the bucks, would come running to the place where the decoying Indians were lying concealed in the bushes.

By this and other methods they killed hundreds of deer for whose carcasses they had no use whatever, in order to get their hides, some of which they used themselves for articles of clothing, and sold the rest to traders.

The settlers valued the deer mainly for its meat, and they saw that if the Indians continued to practice the "bawling" method of taking them, the country would soon be depleted of its supply and the family table would be lacking in this important article of food.

The matter was considered and a committee of settlers went to the Indians and protested against the use of the "bawling" method of hunting, tapping upon the barrels of their rifles as they did so, significant of their intention to use their rifles on Indians who might be caught enticing deer within rifle range in this way. This was sufficient and actual conflict over the matter was avoided.

Rheumatic Symptoms.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Not so very long ago there was very little accurate knowledge about rheumatism and its causes. It was generally supposed to afflict only the aged, and to be caused by exposure to wet and cold.

Today, physicians know that it attacks even the youngest children, and that it is a sign of some infection in the system. What used to be known as "growing pains" in children are now recognized as symptoms of rheumatism.

Rheumatism is an inflammation of the muscles or joints. In any form it is an uncomfortable ailment. Indeed, it can be the most painful of ailments.

Rheumatic fever is an acute form of rheumatism. Not only is the pain quite terrible, but there is danger of the heart being involved. This is what makes rheumatic fever dangerous for a child.

One eminent physician has said that half the ailments of mankind come from bad teeth. Well, this may be true, but sinus trouble, the poisons of the intestinal tract, diseased tonsils and adenoids exact their penalty in ill health. Rheumatism is a common symptom of any of the troubles which produce poisons in the system.

A recent health survey was made in Rochester, New York, of a group of 20,000 children between the age of five and fifteen years. These children had had their tonsils removed, and only 399 of them developed acute rheumatic fever.

The survey of a similar group of 20,000 children, whose diseased tonsils were not removed, showed, as compared to the former group, that 630 of them developed rheumatic fever. Out of the first group the children whose tonsils were removed, 1,267 had "growing pains," while, of the second group, those not operated upon, 1,530 had such pains.

In children the symptom of rheumatism vary a good deal. If the trouble is in the joints the symptoms are mild. A slight redness appears in the region of one joint, and this may be accompanied by a little fever.

Even in mild attacks, children should be kept in bed and warmly covered. There is much more danger of the heart being affected in the case of a child than that of an adult. Sometimes even mild cases of rheumatism are accompanied by inflammation of the delicate membrane lining of the heart. This is called "endocarditis." Keeping a child in bed will help to prevent such a heart complication.

If you find in your child any of these symptoms, you should get the advice of a competent physician. He will give temporary relief, and, what is more, he will find the cause and try to remove it. Nowadays, there are splendid clinics, where children may be treated free, or for a small sum. It is only right that every child should have from earliest infancy the best of medical care, so as to prevent such painful ailments.

Aristotle, Great Philosopher.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

Among the eight men over a period of 2,500 years, whom the Irish philosopher, Bernard Shaw, recently designated as makers of universes, Aristotle is the only one not primarily a mathematician, a physicist or an astronomer. In the field of pure thought, of philosophy as such, Aristotle is generally recognized as the most influential throughout the entire course of human history. He is often referred to as the Stagyrite, because he was born in the little town of Stagyra, the modern Slavia, on the northeast coast of Greece. But he is best known through the phrase applied to him by another mighty figure in the realm of thought, Dante. That phrase is: "The master of them that knows."

Aristotle was a great organizer of the then extant human knowledge with an encyclopedic mind and a great faculty for accumulating and systematizing what was actually known or shrewdly surmised about physical and biological nature. In his excellent work, "The Adventure of Science," Hinzburg says: "Aristotle's intellectual empire endured, almost without a break, for eighteen centuries. * * * This tremendous and unexampled influence which Aristotle exercised was not due altogether to external factors. He was an intellectual genius of the very first order. * * * He was wonderfully equipped to serve as the educator of whole civilizations that were struggling upward from barbarism."

Aristotle was born in the year 384 B. C., the son of a distinguished practitioner of the doctrines of Aesculapius, being physician to the royal court of Macedonia. After a youth spent to little purpose, intellectually, as the royal court, Aristotle went to Athens and entered the Academy of Plato, where he remained for the next twenty years. Aristotle was, by training and inheritance, essentially a botanist. He never became a disciple, although he was long a pupil of Plato. It was only in the domain of intellectual method and discipline that Aristotle was influenced by Plato; for in philosophy, Aristotle never became a Platonist. Certainly the relations between the two great thinkers were very close; and on the death of Plato, Aristotle left the academy with which he had so long been associated.

After some years spent at Assos and in Mitylene, Aristotle was summoned to Macedonia by King Philip to act as the tutor of his son, Alexander, afterwards known as "the Great." It is disappointing to realize that Aristotle, the greatest mind of his day, exercised comparatively little constructive influence directly upon the man who was to become the conquerer of what was then understood as the world. It is supposed, however, although Aristotle's writings do not mention it, that Alexander placed large sums of money at Aristotle's disposal, to enable him to organize, and systematize, all extant knowledge. Says Plimy the Younger: "Alexander the Great, fired by desire to learn of the natures of animals, entrusted the prosecution of this design to Aristotle. * * * For this end he placed at his disposal some thousands of men in every part of Asia and Greece and among them hunters, fowlers, fishers, parkkeepers, herdsmen, beewards as well as keepers of fish-ponds of aviaries in order that no creature might escape his notice. Through the information thus collected he was able to compose some fifty volumes."

Aristotle may be thought of as the forerunner of Lord Bacon and of Immanuel Kant. In ancient times he created the model for our modern universities, as instruments for the study of the world, the collection of data, and the dissemination of knowledge.—Copyright, 1930, International Feature Service, Inc.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

New York, Dec. 6—After sixteen years in Gallipolis, Ohio, Tribune begins printing the daily trivialities which again emphasizes America as the land of opportunity. All one has to do is work hard, keep a stiff upper lip and eventually worth will be recognized.

I was once a Tribune carrier on what was known as the lower route. From this inconspicuous post and with practically no [illegible] became "the" reporter. It would be tiresome to recount the struggles upward, but suffice to announce I now represent the paper in New York.

Already the thrill of recognition is apparent. A post card from there reads: "I am glad to see you working on the Tribune again." We often wondered what became of you." There were times in the early Tribune days when our future hung in the balance.

Serving as the Tribune's dramatic critic and also as usher in the local opera house there was practically no way of preventing me seeing a show free—I wrote of an offering from its New York engagement: "The soubrette seemed to be shy on everything but peroxide and face paint."

The next noon the lady herself breezed into the sanctum. Slapping the paper on the desk and pointing to the article, she shrieked: "Are you the fresh squirt who wrote that?" I gulped a feeble: "Yes, mam." She began to take something out of a satchel.

An hour later it was relayed to me in the hay mow of Maxom's barn a mile from town that the lady had a snakewhip and a wicked gleam in her eye. And was still walking up and down in front of the Tribune office. But then on my reviews were disgustingly favorable.

Then there was my slothful custom of sleeping late. Frequently Grandma would shout up the stairs, long after the entire town was astir, "If you don't stop going so late to that printing office they are going to turn you off." And eventually Grandma's prophecy was fulfilled.

Reporting a small town's goings and comings, sicknesses, deaths and births had more of excitement than many realize. Our problem was not one of news selection, since all in the city, but of rounding up enough news. I had one stand-by in the emergency to fill the personal column. It was: "J. T. Robinson was a visitor from Bidwell today." It might be repetitious, but it was not faking, for Mr. Robinson never failed to come to town every week day.

• • •

Two fertile sources of news in those days were the Park Central hotel and Noah Clark's "Ark"—a sort of stage coach that brought in the country folk from down the river to town. The "Ark" provided a half dozen items and the hotel register was as prolific. I recall one gentleman's name on the hotel register that stood out. He came from Kentucky and his name was Basil Duke. During the period when I determined upon the stage as a career my footlight moniker was to be "Basil Duke." Come to think, it still sounds rather grand.

• • •

Major Burke, with his Buffalo Bill hair, plaid vest, silk hat and thirty-karat sparkler in a red puff tie was a big yearly event in the journalistic life of a small town. He was the famous circus press agent and scattered complimentary tickets among us like hail. He would make me feel worldly by inquiring: "Have you been to New York lately?" Although a dollar excursion to Columbus constituted my contact with the outside world, I would always reply: "Not lately."

• • •

In our town a reporter was not known as a reporter. Years after I lit a shuck for the city I met a Gallipolis resident. He said: "I recollect you. You used to collect items for the Tribune." To others I may be a newspaperman, but back home I am an item gatherer.

The salary as a small town reporter was five dollars a week, and I'll never forget the jackass bray of our printer when I told him a reporter by the name of Richard Harding Davis over in New York was making $45 a week.

A Washington Daybook.

BY HERBERT PLUMMER.

Washington, Dec. 6—Speaker Nicholas Longworth has personal reasons for wanting the Republicans to hold control of the house of representatives in the seventy-second congress.

For if they do, he will set something like a record in being continuously chosen speaker. At the present there have been only three speakers of the house to pass his record point of continuous service.

They are Andrew Stevenson of Virginia, Joseph G. Cannon, of Illinois, and Champ Clark, of Missouri. Each of these three served four terms as speaker of the house in direct succession. Longworth now is serving his third consecutive term.

Henry Clay was six times speaker, but not more than three terms in succession.

Speaker Longworth is exceedingly eager for one more term at least. He wants at least to equal the record of his predecessors by serving four straight terms.

• • •

He is the sixth speaker to serve three terms continuously. The others are Nathaniel Macon, of North Carolina; Schuyler Colfax, of Indiana; James G. Blaine, of Maine; John G. Carlisle, of Kentucky, and Frederick H. Gillett, of Massachusetts.

Both Democrats and Republicans would like nothing better than to see him hang up such a record. For his friends are just as numerous on the Democratic side of the aisle as on the Republican. He appreciates both and they appreciate him.

And he has been a successful speaker. All agree on that.

He attributes what success he has had to the fact that he has adhered to two principles he laid down for himself the day he was elected. They are:

Maintenance to the fullest degree of the dignity and honor of the house and the rights and privileges of its members.

No favoritism in the treatment by the chair of either parties or individuals.

• • •

He regards the cordial reception extended him by the Democrats each time he was conducted into office as evidence that he has been successful in carrying out these principles.

But Longworth has made it plain from the start that he believed it the duty of the speaker to stand squarely on the platform of his party. More than that, he lets it be known that he will assist, in so far as he can properly, enactment of legislation in accordance with the principles of the party.

And he points to the unanimous vote he has received both in caucus and in the house by members of his party as proof he has achieved success in that respect.

"It Can't Be Done."

Italy's Noblest Proverb

By Schaffner-Queen Co.

It is universally conceded that the noblest of Italy's proverbs is this:

"A hundred years cannot repair a moment's loss of honor."

The conscientious funeral director is so imbued with the fundamental truth of this maxim, that it is his unrelaxing principle in performing his professional duties.

He knows, instinctively, that his integrity must be absolutely infallible, and he does the honorable thing under all circumstances.

It is important to deal with a funeral director who is reliable at a time when his services are needed, for he can be depended on for real values. He will also invariably urge economy and take the family circumstances into account.

CHARITY BOARD NAME CHANGED

New Welfare Administration Group Meets Requirements of Standardized Society.

The recently organized welfare board will be known in the future as the Family Welfare society, it was decided at a meeting of the members last night in the office of the Community Fund.

The organization, through which the various relief groups and the city relief department will carry on their work, has met the requirements of a standardized society and is as well equipped to conduct the relief work and family welfare program as are other cities.

Offices of the society will be on the second floor of the Y. M. C. A. building where Mrs. Jane E. Alexander, trained investigator, will interview applicants for relief each day of the week between the hours of 1 and 3 p. m.

It was decided last night that no money from the relief department of either the city or society should be spent on Christmas baskets, as reports showed that a large number of clubs, societies, lodges, church organizations and individual groups were planning to distribute contributions of gifts and Christmas baskets.

Persons wishing to get in touch with homes where baskets would be welcome may do so by getting in touch with Miss Mildred Lombard at the Community Fund office, Phone 2676. These names will be kept in confidence, Miss Lombard stated.

Mrs. John T McNamara is chairman of the society. Others on the board are Dr. T. E. Sonnanstine, Mayor Don Jones, C. A. Bolin, Henry P. Drake, Alfred Donithen, Ensign Shackelford, Mrs. George Turner, Miss Margaret Dowd, Rev. Herbert F. Weckmueller, Fred Scherff, Miss Florence Spaulding and Miss Mildred Lombard.

The next meeting will be held Jan. 2.

COMMITTEE HITS SALES TAX PLAN

Report Vigorously Opposes Proposal To Assess Ohio Retail Business.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 6 Vigorous opposition to enactment of a sales tax law as part of the state's new taxation system was announced today by the sub committee on retailing of Governor Cooper's taxation committee, in a preliminary report. Such a proposed tax should be discarded from the outset in the discussion of new taxation plans the committee said it is led to believe after thorough study of its operation in other states.

Declaring representatives of the retail industry are heavy real estate owners and are interested in relieving the tax burden on real estate, the committee asserts that little relief could be obtained through a sales tax. While a tax of one per cent on gross sales would net about $[illegible] annually if collected on all sales, the committee said that exemptions, evasions and cost of collection would reduce the total to about $[illegible] annually.

Retail merchants also assert any sales tax that might be imposed would of necessity be passed on to the purchaser by the retailer to avoid bankruptcy. The merchant's profit on gross sales is not to exceed one per cent, it said, and if this is required to pay a sales tax, the merchant would be left without profit.

WHITE SAYS HE'LL ATTEND

Will Seek Plan To Serve as Permanent Solution of Problem.

By The Associated Press

WARM SPRINGS, Ga., Dec. 6—Governor Roosevelt of New York has invited governors of six northeastern industrial states to a conference next month to study means of preventing unemployment.

A letter suggesting that the governors meet at Albany, Jan. 23, was sent to Governor-Elect Ely of Massachusetts, Governor Case of Rhode Island, Governor-Elect Cross of Connecticut, Governor Larson of New Jersey, Governor-elect Pinchot of Pennsylvania and Governor-elect White of Ohio.

Governor Roosevelt said in his letter:

"I am not referring to the emergency which exists now or will exist during the course of the coming winter. Each state is doing the best that it can for immediate relief. I am convinced, however, that good results can be obtained from a careful study of the fundamental causes and all the remedies which have been suggested. These involve large social and business problems as well as matters of definite legislation."

Stores

WITH a maze of color and beauty the stores are now and how gorgeous they look! Of course every year they look lovely but somehow there's something about the decorations this year that's different and the trimmings seem more glittering and dazzling than ever before. What would it be like to live in a town all dressed up like this all the time? We very likely would grow tired of it and long to see the plain walls of the buildings for a calmer array of pretties, but it would be rather a lark to try it. And speaking of Christmas did you know it was only 18 more days until Santa arrives and three of those are Sundays?

* * *

Greetings

CONTINUING the Christmas theme, did you ever see such a festive and varied array of cards from which to choose your greetings? There seems to be everything from funnies to Godey prints and sampler cards and plenty of them. And who started the custom of sending greeting cards anyhow? It may be interesting to some to know that Boston claims the distinction of having as a resident one Louis Prang, a native of Germany, as the one who brought the idea to America. Boston folks will tell you that Prang was born in Breslau, Germany, on March 12, 1824, and came to the United States in 1850. That his first place of business probably was Cambridgeport and during the Civil war his factory was in the old Merchants Row. About 1869 he moved his factory to Gardener street, Roxbury and his home to Center street of the same town. He announced that he would give prizes to those artists who submitted designs which he believed to be suitable for greeting cards. He did not depend entirely upon his own selections but exhibitions of the entries were held in New York and awards made by judges and by popular vote. Mr. Prang's specialty being color printing—he was the first to introduce that art into America,—it was only natural to find that coloring held first place in his affection and the colors used were faithfully produced. Craftsmanship was of the highest order and perfection of the smallest detail his watchword. And look what it all came to.

An Aristocrat

MUSH, that lowly dish which was wont to bring forth a feeling of mingled humiliation and shrinkage a few decades ago, has joined the exclusive class of liver and onions and its appearance on the menu these days is cause for rejoicing. Now we boast that he who has the destiny of our gastronomic yearnings in his storerooms, "loosened up and had mush for supper."

ENTERTAINS FOR CLASS

Miss Leanore Greenland entertained at a 6 o'clock dinner last night at her home on Davids street, for members of the Sunshine class of St. Paul's English Lutheran church. Plans were made for a Christmas exchange and party Dec. 22 at the home of the teacher Mrs. J. W. King west of the city. A basket will be arranged for a needy family. The next regular meeting will be Jan. 9 at the home of Mrs. Marion Greenland of Davids street.

CHARLES WILCOX

Wilcox, a Marysville boy, was featured this week in Robert L. Ripley's "Believe It or Not" strip because of his 90-yard run for a touchdown against Ohio Wesleyan this season.

The strip explains that Wilcox, playing halfback for Heidelberg, made his touchdown run the first time he touched the ball in a college grid game. Wilcox, a sophomore, was sent into the Wesleyan game as a substitute and immediately caught a kickoff on his own 10-yard line for a pretty 90-yard run through the entire Bishop team.

90,000 TO WATCH IRISH AND TROJANS BATTLE ON COAST

Betting Favors Southern California To Emerge Victor in Epic Contest.

BY BRIAN BELL
Associated Press Staff Writer

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Dec. 6—Southern Californians, in and out of the university, were more football minded than ever before today as two great teams impatiently awaited game time. The city restrained its enthusiasm as Notre Dame and Southern California stood by for the signal to set off the fireworks incident to their fifth annual battle.

Only 90,000 fortunate customers had tickets, a record crowd for Los Angeles.

The rivalry between the Rough Riders of Knute Rockne and the Trojans of Howard Jones is short as football tradition goes but it makes up for lack of years by intensity of feeling.

Knute Rockne rehearsed his final "pep" talk to his athletes with the cheers of 1,000 Southern California alumni ringing in his ears. Co-guest of honor with Jones at a monster final rally, "Rock" heard the Trojan band play Notre Dame's victory song as an almost hysterical crowd stood and yelled long and loud for the coach of the invading eleven.

"It will be no disgrace to lose to a team with such a spirit," said the coach.

Two Great Teams

"We will have a clean game, a game filled with sportsmanship I have warned my lads against over-ambition. There is room at the top for only one great team, and I say in all sincerity that it does not make a great deal of difference which team wins."

Coach Jones agrees with Rockne that perhaps the two greatest teams in the country were playing and declared that in such a game nothing could be taken for granted.

Southern California had behind it only a defeat by the stalwart Washington State team to mar a great record. Today brought the men of Troy a chance to wipe this out, and more by defeating Notre Dame, a wonder team, with 18 straight victories to its credit in two years.

Popular opinion gave the home team a slight edge, betting odds favoring the Trojans 10 to 8. This too, made a record for not since 1928 has Notre Dame been the under-dog in a football game.

Mullins Out

Larry Mullins, successor to Joe Savoldi, the battering ram who was forced to leave in the thick of the battle, was definitely out of the Notre Dame lineup with injuries. Young Dan Hanley, able and game, but inexperienced, was thus placed in the position of substituting for the substitute for the devastating Savoldi.

Mullins, however, was the only casualty in the big squad of Notre Dame players.

A distressing list of injuries suffered by the Trojans in their Thanksgiving game with the Uni-

NAVY VS. PENN

Game Is Feature on East's Gridiron Slate for Today.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Dec. 6—The regular business of the eastern football season ends today.

Interest centers in the Navy-Penn game and the Colgate-N. Y. U. grays. Importance is attached to the Navy-Penn game as a means of judging Navy's prospects against Army next Saturday. Colgate finds N. Y. U. the last barrier in its path to recognition as one of the best teams in the east.

Western Maryland has a record of two seasons without a defeat to protect in its battle with Maryland.

Carnegie and W. & J., a pair of well matched teams, have been rivals since 1906.

DRAFT SETTLEMENT SOUGHT BY MINORS

Smaller Leagues To Mingle with Majors at New York Meeting.

By The Associated Press

MONTREAL, Dec. 6 — Minor league baseball clans were headed today toward New York and the joint meeting of the National and American leagues.

Some of them hoped to dispose of ball players they could not sell at the 29th annual convention of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues. Others were directly interested in a settlement of the troublesome draft question and hoped that a solution could be found at New York during the major league meetings.

It was understood that an informal conference between the majors and the minors would be held Monday at New York on the draft question.

CARIDEO, SCHWARTZ AND METZGER WIN BERTHS ON ELEVEN

Middle West Stars Stand Out in Selection of Nation's Best Gridiron Performers; Fesler Given One End Position.

BY ALAN GOULD
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Dec. 6—The Great Middle West, by a clean cut and decisive margin, has won the "Battle of All-America Ballots" for 1930.

Although sharing the intersectional football honors of the season with the Far West and South, the Mid-Western forces led by Notre Dame were backed by a veritable volley of votes in the far-flung skirmish for the highest individual honors of the great American college sport.

To help settle the All-America argument, The Associated Press this year conducted the most comprehensive poll of expert newspaper opinion yet attempted.

The national attention focused throughout the season on the exploits of the Rough Riders of Notre Dame resulted in the selection of three stars of this team for first All-America honors and a total of five for places on the squad.

Carideo, Schwartz and Metzger are on the first team, Sacoldi and Conley on the second. No other team has been accorded such outstanding recognition in The Associated Press consensus since 1925, when Dartmouth's national champions placed three men on the first 11.

Carideo High

Frank Carideo of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., star quarterback of the Rough Riders of Rockne, not only won All-America honors for the second successive year, along with Wesley Fesler of Ohio State and Benjamin Ticknor of Harvard, but the Notre Dame field general polled the greatest popular vote in the six-year history of The Associated Press consensus.

Carideo received a total of 388 votes out of a possible 426.

Fesler, Ohio State's captain and all-around ace, and Fred Sington, 215-pound star of Alabama's mighty line, were the other outstanding choices in the nation-wide balloting. They led all rivals by big margins in their respective positions, end and tackle. Fesler polled 306 votes and Sington 260.

• • •

NORTHWESTERN, co-champion of the Big Ten conference, came through with two places on the first team.

The choices this year were Wade "Red" Woodworth, guard, and Frank Baker, rangy end, who gave Notre Dame a very unpleasant afternoon.

Washington State and Southern California, mightiest arrays in the Far West, contributed most of the talent from that sector. Each placed one star on the first team.

For the East, in addition to Harvard's contribution of Ticknor at center for the second straight year, Colgate placed its first man on the big team in 11 years.

The Maroon fullback, Len Macaluso, first team choice over Joe Savoldi of Notre Dame as a result of a strong finish, is the first Colgate All-American since Belford West achieved the honor for the second time on Walter Camp's 1919 army.

• • •

THE South and Southwest turned up a flock of stellar performers, but Sington of Alabama was the only one to capture the nation's fancy on a big-ballot scale.

With the exception of Carideo's runaway race for the quarterback role and with it the mythical captaincy of the mythical team, the balloting was close and exciting for the backfield positions. Erny Pinckert, Southern California's great running and blocking back led the halfbacks by a fairly decisive margin. He polled 145 votes for a lead of 29 over his nearest competitor, Marchmont Schwartz, Notre Dame's great climax runner.

Fesler Stands Out

There was no doubt about the ends. Fesler's total of 306 and Frank Baker's count of 170 topped the list.

The race for the honor of being Sington's running mate at tackle was close-fought between Glenn Edwards, 235-pound bulwark of the Washington State line and George Van Bibbler of Purdue. Edwards won out, 176 to 161.

The 154-pound dynamo of Notre Dame's line, Bert Metzger, ran away with the ballots for guard, collecting 239 as compared with 164 for his running-mate, Woodworth of Northwestern.

Ben Ticknor's superlative performance in Harvard's conquest of Yale apparently swung the argument at center in his favor after a close early race with Mel Hein of Washington State.
